It is believed that only by fully meeting the challenges of foreign culture can we continuously build scientific and perfect socialist core values in the context of the future.

1. The significance of the core values of socialism

1.1 An important bridge for human communication

Since China opened its doors to the world, economic and political exchanges between countries have increased. As the exchanges between countries around the world continue to deepen, the culture among countries is also deeply infiltrated. Only by effectively understanding the similarities and differences between foreign cultures and national cultures can we better build bridges of communication and integrate the cultural essence of foreign cultures. And the necessary conditions for long-term development. In the context of foreign culture, the establishment of a scientific socialist core value is of great significance and will play a vital role in the exchange of Chinese culture and the establishment of national values [1].

1.2 It is conducive to the development and stability of the country

China is a socialist country. The political beliefs and ideological foundation of the Chinese people are Marxism, but it is difficult to build a perfect socialist country by political belief alone. China's position in the world is becoming more and more important. When foreign cultures continue to flood into China, Chinese nationals are greatly affected by it. The universal values are proclaimed by the bourgeoisie-freedom, democracy, equality, and fraternity-have had a certain negative effect on the traditional values of Chinese nationals. These negative ideas are difficult to eliminate with communist beliefs alone. A famous professor at Harvard University once said in a speech that today is a cultural age. If we only rely on politics to restrain society, if there are no core cultural values, the country and the people will not be able to stand on the world. The Chinese nation has a history of 5,000 years. In the face of the impact of globalization, it needs a strong economic foundation as a strong backing. It also needs a pure and unique national culture as a national spirit and a national belief.

1.3 It is conducive to building a harmonious society

The blood of the nation needs to be integrated into the cultural heritage. The home of the national spirit needs to infiltrate the fertilizer of culture. In the course of the development of our country for more than 5,000 years, the Chinese people have been united in struggle, inheriting and inheriting, and jointly created a national culture of "roots deep and profound" and "seven latitude and longitude". A country wants to achieve long-term development is inseparable from the two parts of soft power and hard power. Today's world culture is diverse and complex, and culture has become an indispensable part of national competition. Establishing correct socialist values is the soul of the country's prosperity and the essence of building a unique and rich national culture of socialism. The development direction of socialism with Chinese characteristics requires the correct values of the people. Socialist values serve as the root of the spirit of building socialism with Chinese characteristics, guiding and constraining the entire society and the development of individual society. It is the most fundamental hardware for building a harmonious society and the basis for leading national thought. The impact of foreign culture has triggered a series of problems for China's socialist values. It is important to establish a correct ideological belief. Socialist values are the mainstream ideological concepts of the socialist countries. Only by establishing correct socialist values can we lead the social atmosphere and develop ideological education for the people in order to truly serve the people of society and create a harmonious society.

2. Problems and Challenges Faced by Socialist Core Values

2.1 Conflicts between the core values of Chinese and foreign cultures and the problems that arise

All countries in the world are facing the historical trend of global integration, which has brought about new features and new changes in the order among countries in the world. These changes have positive or negative effects on the economic, cultural and political aspects of the world. The infiltration of foreign culture into China has also brought new vitality and different challenges to China.

In recent years, the “universal value” of foreign culture has had a great impact on Chinese values. Many Chinese scholars have published a series of discussions and remarks on universal values. Some scholars believe that the infiltration of universal values is not conducive to the direction of China's future development and the reform of China's political system. Regarding the audience of universal values, the group of opinion one is superstitious about universal values. It believes that democracy, freedom and equality advocated by universal values are the embodiment of human social civilization, the ideal values that human civilization should follow, and all the values of all countries in the world. Their destiny, they respect the universal values as the mainstream ideological trend of human civilization and even world civilization. Viewpoint 2: Scholars believe that Chinese socialist values are a transition to capitalist values, with world culture as the mainstream, and Chinese culture is only one of them. He even proposed to let China change the direction of economic, political, cultural and other construction, and build Chinese values based on world culture. These views have a very negative effect on the development of China. Universal values are not suitable for the correct establishment of socialist values. In fact, they only promote their capitalist values and attempt to abduct their values to China and influence China. The establishment of the socialist core values of the people.

Through the discussion of the universal values of foreign cultures, we should fully realize that universal values have had an adverse ideological impact on the nationals, and it is urgent to promote correct socialist values [2].

2.2 The problem between building socialist core values and Chinese traditional culture

In the context of foreign culture, we deeply understand that China has long been integrated into the world. The relationship between world culture and traditional Chinese culture is subtle. With international exchanges becoming an inevitable cultural event among the world's great powers, we have dealt with world culture and traditional culture and traditions. The relationship between culture and the core values of socialism is crucial.

First of all, we must fully understand the role and influence of traditional culture on building socialist values. Any kind of ideological trend requires the accumulation and evolution of history. The core values of socialism are based on the traditional culture of China for five thousand years. It also combines the essence of Marxist thought, combined with the national conditions in the early days of China's founding, through historical integration, continuous improvement and innovation.

In the process of inheriting the Chinese national culture, it is very important to maintain the essence of Chinese culture. In the context of the impact of foreign cultures, many kinds of ideas collide with each other. At this time, we should keep a clear head to choose a bright road for Chinese culture. Everything in the world has both positive and negative sides. For the inheritance of 5,000 years of culture in our country, we also need to be divided into two parts to recognize. Chinese culture is mainly Confucianism, and the humanistic spirit inside is worthy of the pursuit of the people, but at the same time, we also have Recognize the feudal ideas that have been passed down. In the inheritance of the profound knowledge of Buddhism, we should also know that it is a theology, contrary to science.

Therefore, in the process of building socialist core values, we must learn to use Chinese scientific and dialectical thinking to recognize and inherit, and to truly take its essence to its dross. Only in this way can China's traditional culture It has been able to live a hundred. At the same time, we need to strengthen the exchanges and communication between China and the world culture, integrate the world spirit into the national spirit perfectly, lay a cultural foundation for China's construction of socialist values, and add color to the construction of China's socialist culture.

3. Countermeasures for building socialist core values

3.1 Seeking commonalities between Chinese and foreign cultures

In the context of foreign culture infiltrating China, taking effective measures is conducive to the exchange of Chinese and foreign cultures and the building of socialist core values. Due to the different cultural backgrounds and different cultural characteristics of different countries in the world, cultural differences and conflicts between countries are very obvious. In the context of foreign culture, building socialist core values requires scientific research and control of commonalities and differences between cultures. Dealing with the relationship between national culture and national culture can absorb the fineness and promote the harmonious development of the team members' culture. The report of the 18th National Congress of the Communist Party of China issued a declaration on how to promote the construction of socialist culture. The prosperity of the country and the rejuvenation of the nation need to continuously improve the competitiveness of national cultures and enhance the overall strength of their culture. For example, China held the "Chinese New Year" in Europe, and showed the unique culture of China to the world, and also absorbed the essence of foreign culture.

3.2 Inheriting and Developing Chinese Traditional Culture

The spirit of judging traditional culture is the national spirit and the spirit of the times. Building socialist core values must not only inherit Chinese traditional culture, but also need to combine the spirit of the times and fully combine the two. The continuous Chinese culture of the future generations of the people of the future is only after a long history, and the unique culture of the Chinese nation can be seen in the forest. The core values of socialism are based on traditional Chinese culture. Therefore, the education of the whole nation and the popularization of Chinese traditional culture and the historical education of Chinese patriotism will exert tremendous influence on the promotion of socialist core values [3]. It not only enables the people to deeply understand Chinese traditional culture, but also enhances national pride and honor. Thereby enhancing the national identity of the socialist core values.

3.3 Correctly recognize the advantages of socialist core values

In the context of the influence of foreign culture, the establishment and cultivation of socialist values is of great significance. Therefore, we must correctly understand its advantages and the role of us. First of all, we must always keep in mind the guiding ideology of Marxism and the core values of socialism with Chinese characteristics, and not be influenced by the propaganda of Western culture; then, we will carry out extensive exchanges of socialist core values, through mutual discussion and research on values. Finally, we will recognize the standards of China's socialist core values and their comprehensive significance, and promote the media through the new era, strengthen the establishment of a security system for the people at the bottom of the society, increase the recognition of the socialist values of the middle class people, and promote our society. The harmonious development has laid the foundation for China to build a modern socialist power.

4. Conclusion

In the context of the influence of foreign culture, the development of socialist core values is both an opportunity and a challenge, and a difficult and long-term road to China's development. We should base ourselves on China's national conditions and, under the leadership of the Communist Party of China, continue to carry forward and innovate and build a socialist culture, continuously promote the creation of a harmonious and civilized culture, and establish a correct socialist core values.
